Calling organizational leaders!

Don't miss this highly interactive workshop introducing the Future Search method for organizational planning, change, and transformation. Future Search gets “the whole system in the room.” It leads to paradigm shifts, out-of-the-box thinking, and the building of new coalitions and relationships.

Future Search creates just solutions by equalizing the voices of “in-groups” and “out-groups” and by helping stakeholders see the shared, big picture in which they can find common ground.

In these uncertain times, every organization is looking for proven ways to tap creativity and collaboration. Future Search has been applied across the country and around the globe in organizations large and small: government and private organizations, communities, school districts, human and social services, and healthcare systems.

Bring your team and your community partners for an engaging and practical experience.

Workshop Presenter:

Jeffrey Axelbank, Psy.D. is a psychologist working for over 30 years in both clinical and organizational consulting roles. He has worked with schools, community groups, companies, and organizations on such issues as navigating changes and transitions, conflicts between subgroups, corporate culture, team development, leadership development, strategic planning, and succession planning. He earned a doctorate at Rutgers University, and completed specialized training as a consultant in the Organization Program at the William Alanson White Institute.

The Future Search workshop is one of many featured events during the June 25-29, 2025 Annual Conference of the International Society for the Psychoanalytic Study of Organizations on the theme of “Justice, Organizations, and Psychoanalysis”
